Experience divine inspiration as you survey the Alps from this shrine to luxury. Chalet Les Anges has a heavenly position in Zermatt's Petit Village, and is an incredible architectural space, filled with light.

The chalet's 700sqm interior was created by a renowned designer, Magali de Tscherner, and it shows. This is ultra-modern chic meets natural simplicity. ## Eating Prepare your tastebuds for a treat when you arrive at Chalet Les Anges. Whether you hanker after a simple bowl of pasta, or an extravagant seven course meal, the Michelin star trained chef is at your service.

Using fresh local produce and regional delicacies, the aim is to go beyond expectations. Typical dinner menus include fresh fish, seasonal vegetables and local game. But if the suggested dishes don't suit you, just let the chef know and everything will be tailored to your wishes. It starts with a cup of tea or coffee in bed, then an appetising breakfast. Returning from the slopes you are revived with afternoon tea, followed by pre-dinner canapés, and the main event: a knock-out evening meal. All of this is included, and dinner is served six nights of the week, giving you the opportunity to sample Zermatt's restaurants.

Your glass of champagne is kept topped up, or if you prefer soft drinks, spirits or the carefully selected house wines, these are freely available too. If you desire a particular vintage, the a la carte wine menu has further options, for an extra cost, or you simply ask us for your favourite tippie in advance.

Kids

Little ones are given a warm welcome at Chalet Les Anges and once the excitement of exploring their A-list new home has died down, children can get down to serious business of having fun in the snow.

There are sledges for days out in the snow, and in the evenings the toys and games, DVDs and Wii can keep them entertained. The fabulous TV room, on the same level as the dining area and lounge, makes a perfect hang out den.

Staff are happy to arrange childcare if you want to go out for some grown-up time out. And there is no need to worry about mealtimes – children’s suppers, cooked just for them, are all part of the service.
