

Chalet Solmai

Verbier, Switzerland

What we love...

We love wrapping up warm and dining outside on the balcony under the stars, before heading in for hot toddy by the roaring fire.

While tell-tale oak paneling, heavy beams and chunky stone walls give the game away that this is a classic Alpine property, Chalet Solmai also feels like a stylish English manor-house, littered with antiques and swathed in Persian rugs and tapestries.

Chalet Solmai is located in the heart of Verbier and sleeps up to 24 people. From its south-facing terraces and balconies the mountain views are fabulous – and indoors your eyes are in for a treat, too. The property is full of beautiful art, and with carefully chosen antiques throughout, the place feels loved and homely, rather than purpose-designed for fleeting visitors.

With lots of space and two distinct halves, each with their own living and dining areas, Chalet Solmai is perfect for large families sharing, who want time together but also the option of privacy. The large dining room seats 20 people, and the expansive sun-filled terrace is perfect for pre-dinner drinks. Big squashy leather sofas in the living room are great for post-dinner recovery next to the fire. And then there's the large DVD library to work through.

Rooms are all uniquely designed and feature hand-made Simon Horne sleigh beds. Baths tend to be gorgeously over-sized. Robes hang on every bedroom door. These details are what add a touch of magic to Chalet Solmai.

Eating

Guests are welcome to use the well-equipped, open-plan kitchen, but you won't feel the need to, with six staff on hand to look after you, including an experienced professional chef.

Whatever you'd like, you can have. The chef will tailor the menu to your requirements, and serve at whatever time you'd like to eat, using the finest local ingredients.

Dinner will be served with fine wines. Our staff can recommend a good tittle, or you can browse the extensive wine cellar, stocked with hundreds of bottles wine, champagne and liqueurs.

And once you've re-gained your appetite by morning, enjoy a hearty breakfast and return for freshly baked cakes in the afternoon.

Kids

Even on a white-out day, children will never get bored in chalet Solmai. Endless toys, games and DVDs are provided, as well as sledges, a PlayStation and Wii.

The chalet is spacious and ideal for families, with two dining rooms and living areas. Kids will love the TV room and the chance to dine together in the smaller eating area where, if you like, the chef can serve up a delicious high tea.

Several of the bedrooms are large enough for cots, and bedrooms six and nine offer great space for families with queen-sized beds and a set of twin beds each.

With numerous staff to look after your party, they can arrange anything you like for your children – from tobogganing and ski lessons to horse-drawn sleigh rides.
